

Family Drama: May

Sa uncovers a massive, sinister cult breeding program, and his only thought is: "Oh man, this is going to make Thanksgiving at my brother's house so awkward. Let's do it."

Here is the revised, hard-boiled timeline for Sa's backstory, integrating all the mechanical fixes so the logic is bulletproof.

Case File: Sa's First Extortion (Age 17)

1. The Crash & The Collar Sa is street racing in the Sump Sector. A patrol cruiser driven by Gonzalez (his future captain) attempts to box him in. Stubborn and hostile, Sa tries to violently outmaneuver the cop, pushing his car and his poorly maintained artificial heart past the redline. His heart stalls, causing him to black out and crash directly into Gonzalez's cruiser. Gonzalez pulls the half-dead punk from the smoking wreck and cuffs him to the steering wheel until the medics arrive.
 - The Ultimatum: Gonzalez gives him a choice: one year in juvenile detention with a permanent record, or six months of grueling community service at a local Cult outreach base. Sa takes the base.
2. The Filtration Pipes & The Stray Sa spends his days scrubbing industrial grime in the Cult's collective dorms. Here, he spots Mei (7). She isn't a warrior; she's cheap child labor. She's miserable, exhausted, and using an oversized plasma-cutter to scrape acid-spitting "Abyssal Parasites" (the Sump's equivalent of giant cockroaches) out of the ventilation grates. Sa thinks it's pathetic, but files the information away.
3. The Audio Trigger & The Break-In While slacking off near the administrative wing, Sa hears a humming, a very specific, unnerving hymn. It hits him instantly—it's the exact same weird melody his brother's wife, Una, always hums around the house. Paranoia and curiosity kick in. He breaks into the admin office specifically looking for a connection.
 - The Discovery: He finds the Cult's "Preaching" roster, revealing their systemic operation of planting sleeper-wives to breed and expand their influence. He finds Una's old Cult file (Stellris) and realizes the miserable 7-year-old pipe-cleaner is her undocumented kid.
4. The Blackmail (The Extraction) Sa's six months are up. He doesn't go to the police to expose the breeding program—he doesn't care about justice, he just wants to cause a problem for the people who annoyed his family. He walks into the Cult Admin's office and drops a copied stack of the "Honey Trap" operational files onto the desk.

- The Leverage: "I'm clocking out today, and the kid comes with me. If anyone follows us, or if my brother's wife suddenly goes missing, my buddy Gonzalez at the precinct gets the original files."
- The Result: The Cult is forced to let a 17-year-old delinquent walk out the front door with their asset. Sa dumps Mei at his brother's house, completely blowing up his brother's fake marriage, and walks away feeling like he won.